2

O how happy is the Man,
Has health and can command a Shilling,
A Friend a Sweetheart and a Can,
A Book and House to dwell in,
He's never whining or repining,
Frank to lend or borrow,
If poor he's glad, but never sad;
Still careless of Tomorrow.

3

O how happy is the Man,
Has health and can command a Shilling,
A Friend a Sweetheart and a Can,
A Book and House to dwell in,
With little care, a gentle fair,
A mind to pleasure willing,
How bless'd the Man, who always can,
Command the splendid Shilling.
